A Remarkable Reunion.

The following is from the Orange, (N. J.) Chronicle of April 11: "A notable reunion of college men took place at the home of John O. Heald, Park Avenue and Cleveland Street on Thursday night. Twenty-three years ago fifteen members of the Senior class of Yale College were elected members of the college society known as the Scroll and Key. They left college in 1873 and separated to various parts of the country. Mr. Heald was one of the number. He recently conceived the idea of getting the fifteen together, and as a result the entire number who had spent the Senior year together gathered at his house on Thursday night at dinner. They came from as far west as Chicago and Pittsburg, and as far north as Brunswick, Me., and Syracuse, for the sole purpose of attesting their loyalty to each other and their college society. The night was informally spent with reminiscences of days at Yale and singing college songs."

Obituary.

HON. AMOS O. OSBORN, '36.
Amos O. Osborn, '36, died at his home in Waterville, Conn., September 27, 1896. He was born in that village on December 12th, 1811, and, with the exception of two years, has been continuously a resident there.

He was the sixth in descent from his English ancestor, Richard, who came from England to Hingham, Mass., in 1635, and went from there to New Haven, Conn., in 1639, where he became a free planter and shared in the division of land in 1643. His father, Amos Osborn, born in 1764, was a native of Trumbull, Conn., and came to Waterville in 1802, engaged in distilling, and he and his son have ever since lived there. His mother was Rosanna, daughter of Benjamin Sweetland, a soldier of the Revolution.

He was the last survivor of his six brothers and sisters. He received his early education in Waterville, and at the private school of Rev. Ely Burckard at Paris Hill. When only sixteen years of age he taught school for one winter at Stockwell. Later he went to Hamilton, which had already become a noted school centre, and after fitting there, was for two years a member of the class of 1836 of Yale. He left college at the end of the Sophomore year to assist his father in business. During his two years in College he roomed with Joseph F. Sabine, '36, in 79 North Middle. He was very popular in his class and bright in his studies. He made many friends through his congenial and ever cheerful disposition.

While assisting his father in business he also studied law with his brother-in-law, the Hon. Levi D. Carpenter, and also afterwards with Judge Joshua Spencer of Utica. In the fall of 1837 he was admitted to the bar and soon after opened an office for the practice of his profession in Westfield, N. Y. After two years he returned to Waterville to engage in the same profession.

During the Civil War he contributed very liberally to the Union cause. He was largely interested in the organization of the Waterville Bank and for forty-five years was a member of its Board of Directors. In 1840 he was one of the original incorporators of Grace Church and for fifty-three years was its Senior Warden.

Throughout all his life he was a student. He was deeply interested in
