but if he has to retire, Fincke will move back to full-back and Ely will take quarter. It may be said here that Ely has showed himself fully capable to manage the team and in defensive work is fully the equal of Fincke. He lacks the experience, however, of the older player and would not find himself as much at home in the big game.

Murray, Chamberlin and Chadwick have improved very much in their play in recent practice and are expected to hold their own against Princeton's center trio. Rodgers and Murphy have been all season, and are now the strongest points in the rush line, both in offensive and defensive play. Bass has laid off over a week from fear of over-training, and when he began to play again last week he went to work with much more vim and force. Conner seems the final choice for right end. He plays a hard and plucky game in spite of an injured ankle, which has troubled him for over a week.

The team in general has been improved very much under the coaching of many old men, who have been in town for two weeks or more. Dr. J. A. Hartwell, '89S., has acted as head coach and the following men have been seen on the field more or less regularly: W. Camp, '80; H. H. Knapp, '82; Ray Tomkins, '84; H. Beecher, '88; W. T. Bull, '88S.; W. W. Hefflinger, '91S.; V. C. McCormick, '93S., and S. B. Thorne, '96.

The University Eleven and substitutes will leave New Haven for New York on the 8.10 P. M. train Friday. A special Pullman car will be attached to the train for the team. In New York the team will stay at the Hotel Plaza.

PRINCETON QUITE CONFIDENT.

A Slump in Practice but a Victory Expected.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 16, 1896.—After two days rest from the effects of the Harvard game, the Princeton football team again put on their suits and commenced practice for the final contest to take place next Saturday. The rest did not seem to be effective, for the men have not shown the life and energy necessary for the final round-up of the team. The practice last Wednesday and Thursday was very good and the scrub was unable to accomplish anything against the University, nor was it able to stop their onslaughts. But on Friday the team slumped and played in a lifeless manner, allowing the scrub to score on them. They have not recovered yet, as the practice of Saturday and Monday indicated.

Some of the men are tired and possibly past the fine point of training. However, during the remainder of the week, the greatest caution will be used, and the hope is to have each man in the best of trim by Saturday.

The men who were hurt have all recovered except Captain Cochran, but it is expected he will be ready to play on the 21st. Rosengarten's sprained ankle is enough better to enable him to go about and he will doubtless be able to play also. All the other men are fully recovered and have been in their places on the team each day.

Reiter and Wheeler will likely be given a chance to play at half-back before the game is over, and also Wheeler and Poe will make good halves should the occasion demand them. The line substitutes will be Edwards and Booth, guards; Tyler and Geer, tackles; and Lathrop, end. This team is the strongest possible, and if the men are in the best of condition on Saturday Yale will have to put forward an exceptionally strong team to beat them.

The team will also go at that time and will make their headquarters at the Murray Hill. A part of the grand stand has been reserved as a cheering section, and in that part most of the students will be found doing their part to win the game by cheering.

There is not the general feeling of confidence in the result that there was last week, because of the poor form shown recently by the team. However, all will go to New York with a hope, strengthened by the belief in the superiority of the Princeton team, of seeing a game in which the Orange and Black will be victorious.

Yale Defeats New Jersey Athletic Club.

The University eleven lined up against a team from the New Jersey Athletic Club at the Yale Field last Saturday and played a short game of two fifteen-minute halves. The game was scheduled for 3 p. m., but owing to some blunder in the management, the football suits of the visiting team were sent to the Field house instead of the Gymnasium, and the game was delayed over an hour. During this time the University eleven played an exhibition game against the College team, in which special opportunities were given Hine for kicking goals from the field.

In the game against the New Jersey Athletic Club Yale scored three touchdowns and Hine kicked two of the goals. Yale's method of play was to rush the ball down to the twenty-yard line by mass plays and runs through the tackles, and then give Hine a chance at a goal from the field. Hine made at least half a dozen such attempts and failed in every case.

The defensive play was considerably stronger than at the previous games, but the home team seemed very weak in punting. The mass plays were used with great success, netting five yards nearly every time. Ely ran the team well at quarter, but was slow in passing back for kicks and his place was taken by Fincke on several such occasions.

The attendance was very large and the enthusiasm shown by the Yale crowd was marked. The line-up follows:—

Work of Yale and Princeton Compared.

The individual work of the members of the Yale and Princeton teams can be only very insufficiently shown by the scores made by them in the games played, and the number of points scored by a team does not show its strength very accurately in comparison with other teams. The summary of scores given below is, however, the only method by which the work of the Yale and Princeton teams can be summarized during the past season. In addition to these scores Yale forced West Point to make a safety and Baird has kicked five goals from the field, so that the total number of points scored by the two teams is Yale 210, Princeton 271:—

THE FRESHMAN ELEVEN.

A Glimpse at the Candidates—Plenty of Weight and Competition.

The Freshman football team this year has been under the charge of Mr. T. W. Miller, '97. From the eighty-eight candidates who appeared at the opening of the season twenty odd men now remain from whom the team that will line up against the Princeton Freshmen will be chosen.

The team as a whole has plenty of weight, averaging in the line one hundred and sixty-five pounds and the backs one hundred and fifty-three pounds, but at present the men lack dash and a knowledge of the game. The tackles have been weakened by the loss of two promising candidates, and this has had rather a discouraging effect on the rest of the team. The ends are slow on following kicks and fail to locate the man with the ball. The backs are weak and it is here that the Princeton Freshmen are most feared. They are rather slow on end plays but buck the line fairly well, although too erect. Although the team ran up the large score of forty-two to Andover's four, this can be taken as no criterion of the play as the Andover team this year is very weak. However the team has been improving steadily and, with conscientious work for the next week; it should stand a fair show of winning from the Princeton Freshmen. There is still a good deal of competition for some of the positions and the team will not be definitely chosen for some days.

THE CANDIDATES.

C. E. Sullivan and K. Winter are the candidates for quarter-back. Sullivan is slower but runs the team better than Winter. On the other hand Winter is the better tackler of the two.

J. W. Miller and H. P. Wickes have each played at center in some of the games this year. Both men have weight but Miller is more steady in snapping the ball back. Wickes also fails to break up the opposing interference properly.

F. W. Allen, E. E. Marshall and F. A. Leary are the aspirants for guard positions. At present Allen and Marshall are making the best showing, perhaps on account of their weight. All three need more snap. Marshall and Leary play too high and tackle poorly while Allen is slow in getting into a play.

There are five candidates for the tackles. R. H. McCormick, Jr., and M. L. McBride have played in the last two games. McCormick tackles poorly and fails to throw the runner back. McCormick is at present over-trained and like A. M. Bell, another candidate for the position, lacks a knowledge of the game. Walton and Wakeman, two men who appeared for the first time early this week, are promising, although slow.

Of the ends E. M. Eddy, R. J. Scheppe and G. L. Young are the most prominent. All fail to get down the field on a kick quickly enough, and the first two are apt not to pick out the man with the ball early in the play. All tackle fairly well.

There are still four men trying for half back. O. F. Luce and M. Douglass run slowly and are inclined to leave their interference. Douglass is a good line buckler. J. C. Phillips runs well, but is apt to stumble. S. F. Shattuck plays with snap but blundly and does not yet know the game.

C. E. Brinley and R. B. Flint are the candidate for full back. Brinley is far more steady and a more experienced player, although Flint plays with dash. Brinley kicks fairly well. Both are fair line bucklers.

Last Monday evening Corliss Esmonde Sullivan, 1900, was elected permanent captain of the team. Sullivan prepared for college at the University School, Cleveland, Ohio, where he played quarter-back on the team for two years, being captain the last year. He is eighteen years old and weighs one hundred and forty-five pounds.

Fall Work of the Crew.

Mr. Cook has now been in New Haven over two weeks and has devoted his entire time to work with the crews. This has given the men an early start in their preparation for next year's work and will save them from part of the customary long and tedious work in the indoor tank. The plan of seating the men on the side instead of in the middle of the boat has been tried with considerable success, and Mr. Cook seems quite pleased with the progress which has so far been made.

The crew has been rowing generally in the following order:

Stroke, Simpson; No. 7, Patterson; No. 6, Langford; No. 5, Bailey (Capt.); No. 4, Campbell; No. 3, Marsh; No. 2, Whitney; Bow, McLauchlan; Coxswain, Greene or Clark.

Yale Wins the Shoot.

The Intercollegiate shoot between Yale, Harvard and Princeton was held at Soldier's Field, Cambridge, on Saturday, November 7. The Yale team won the match, the score being Yale 67, Princeton 57, Harvard 46. The Yale team was composed of the following: C. R. Bement, '97S.; D. L. Hebard, '98; C. B. Schley, '99S.; H. D. Wescott, 1900; C. B. Spears, '99S., and W. S. Peck, '99, substitute.

In the Spring the Club will send a team to take part in the regular Intercollegiate shoot for the "Shooting and Fishing Cup" won by Princeton last year.
