

FOOTBALL IN THE SCHOOLS.

A Review of the Season in the Eastern Leagues.

Alumni of the different preparatory schools watch the records of interscholastic contests with an interest second only to that taken in their college organizations. At present the development of athletics at schools is almost as well perfected as in college. The teams, more especially the football elevens, are for the most part under the instruction of collegiate athletes. These schools send every year to college a body of trained football players, and a very large proportion of the best college football players each year are graduated from schools in New England or in the vicinity of New York. The Weekly has prepared a review of the work of the well known leagues and elevens of the East during the past season.

A majority of the teams from the large boarding schools were composed of lighter men and less brilliant players than those of a year ago. As a consequence of this, trick plays were more common, and far more attention was paid to team work. But even so the work of the elevens was below the usual standard.

THE CHAMPION ELEVEN.

The best team from these schools and probably the best of any preparatory school eleven, with the exception of the famous Carlisle Indians, was the Lawrenceville team. The most important game played by this eleven was the annual game with Andover, which resulted in a victory for Lawrenceville by the score of 12 to 4. The results of other games were: Lawrenceville 32, Pennington 6; Lawrenceville 14, Hill School 6. Games were also played against the Princeton scrub.

The team was made up as follows:—Right end, C. L. Dudley; right tackle, S. A. Dodds; right guard, G. L. Cadwalader; center, J. A. Dana; left guard, Howard Richards, Jr., (Captain); left tackle, G. McK. Mattis; left end, C. R. Dodds; quarter-back, H. R. Loy; right half-back, J. D. Kafer; left half-back, C. Cleveland, Jr.; full back, Herbert McCord.

Of these the best player is Cadwalader, while Richards and Mattis also deserve mention. Three players, Captain Richards, Cadwalader and Dudley, expect to enter Yale next Fall, two, Mattis and Loy, go to Princeton, two are uncertain, and the remaining four do not graduate.

ANDOVER.

The Andover eleven of this year was not equal to last year's eleven in individual players, but the team work was rather better. The general work of the eleven, however, was less successful. This year was marked by the renewal of the annual contests with Exeter, in which Andover defeated her opponents.

The results of some of the important games were: Andover 28, Exeter 0; Yale, 1900, 42, Andover 4; Lawrenceville 12, Andover 4.

The eleven was composed of the following: Right end, L. Wheeler; right tackle, E. Holladay; right guard, S. G. Ellis; center, J. C. Pierson; left guard, J. J. Bartley; left tackle, F. H. Swift; left end, T. C. Schreiber; quarter-back, F. L. Quinby; right half-back, J. W. Burdick; left half-back, G. L. White; fullback, Jesse Barker, (Captain.)

Among these the best work was done by Quinby, Burdick and Barker. Only four of the players graduate this year and all of these expect to enter Yale. They are Swift, Holladay, Wheeler and White. Three of the substitutes graduate and they also will enter Yale.

EXETER.

The Exeter School team was far below the average of that school. Nine games were played, Exeter winning only two. The Andover game was the most important of the season. Other games of interest were: Tuft's 6, Exeter 4; Harvard, 1900, 4, Exeter 0; Worcester 10, Exeter 4.

The team played as follows: Right end, G. Shaw; right tackle, W. W. Higley; right guard, H. H. Peyton; center, B. Z. Kasson, (Captain); left guard, W. H. Burgess; left tackle, O. Zimmerman; left end, F. Haggerty; quarter-back, F. C. Robertson; right half-back, G. G. Whitcomb; left half-back, T. J. M. Syphax; fullback, J. S. Miller.

Four of these players graduate this Spring.

ST. PAUL'S.

St. Paul's School of Concord, N. H., generally places a strong eleven in the field, but no games are allowed with other schools and so for the past four years one of the Harvard teams has played against the school. This year's eleven was rather weaker than the average, but compared favorably with other school teams. The only game of the year was played against the Harvard Law School team, by which St. Paul's was defeated by the score of 20 to 6.

The team follows: Right end, D. R. Pruyn; right tackle, A. M. Henderson; right guard, A. Hollingsworth; center, J. R. Bloomer; left guard, R. R. Richardson; left tackle, W. B. Ribbey; left end, F. H. Phipps; quarter-back, C. Campbell; right half-back, Paul Starne; left half-back, T. Lindsay; fullback, Peter Vredenburg, (Captain.)

The strongest player of the team was Starne; Bloomer, Henderson and Vredenburg also filled their positions well. Six of the players graduate this year. Of these three, Phipps, Richardson and Campbell, will enter Yale; two, Hollingsworth and Henderson, will go to Harvard, and Captain Vredenburg, to Princeton. Three of the four first substitutes graduate and all go to Yale.

HOTCHKISS.

The Hotchkiss School eleven for this year was a stronger, though lighter, team than that of the year before. The work of the team for the year was on the whole successful. The results of the more important games were: Hotchkiss 0, Yale, 1900, 26; Hotchkiss 50, Hartford High School 0; Hotchkiss 38, Taft's School 6; Hotchkiss 6, Williston 8.

Good work throughout the season was done by Fincke and Hixon. Seven of the regular team graduate this year. Six men, Captain Hixon, Noyes, Reynolds, Savage, Hoysradt and Montague, will enter Yale. Fincke will go to Harvard. Two of the substitutes, Coy and Robertson, graduate also and both will enter Yale.

GROTON.

The Groton eleven was rather quicker and lighter than the average, and their game was characterized by running plays, tricks and the absence of any mass formations. The work of the team for the season was most successful. The eleven scored 126 points to their opponents' 4. The most important game of the year was with St. Mark's School, which Groton won by the score of 46-0.
