[Graduates are invited to contribute to this column.]

'30.—The Connecticut Legislature has defeated the bill to pension Dr. Henry Barnard, of Hartford. The "Hartford Courant" comments editorially on this subject, as follows: "We think the opponents of the pension weakened rather than strengthened their case when they argued that the proposed grant from the treasury would be a dangerous precedent. Connecticut has produced but one Dr. Barnard since 1636. He is as unique in his way as was Thomas Hooker, the founder of 'Brother Jonathan,' or 'Old Put.' In the nature of things his individuality and work cannot be duplicated. But the decision on the pension question has gone against him, and it is as idle now to discuss it as to discuss the failure to utilize for practical purposes the enthusiasm kindled at the recent anniversary celebration."

Obituary.

GEN. WILLIAM H. MILLS, '25.

General William Henry Mills, '25, died Saturday morning, March 6, 1897, at the residence of his son, Judge Grayson Mills, in Sandusky, Ohio. He was almost 92 years of age, and was one of the oldest residents of Sandusky. He was the son of Isaac Mills, being born in New Haven, Conn., April 26, 1805. After graduating from Yale in 1825, he studied law, and was admitted to the bar, but never practiced his profession. He soon went to Ohio and located in Sandusky, having been preceded there by his father, who had become the owner of a large part of the land upon which that city is built. General Mills married Miss Caroline Hurd on January 30, 1830, who, with five children, survives him. April 1, 1895, General Mills took up his residence with his son, Judge Grayson Mills, and has since remained there. A short time ago he fell on a stairway and his death resulted from the effects of this fall, which was a severe shock to him in his infirm condition, on account of old age.

General Mills acquired his military title by reason of his connection with the State Militia.

The death of General Mills leaves the Hon. Stillman K. Wightman, of New York City, the sole survivor of the seventy-one members who graduated from Yale in the class of 1825. The oldest living graduate of Yale is Hon. Benjamin Silliman, LL.D., of Brooklyn, who graduated in 1824.

DR. BURR REEVE ABBE, '54 M. S.

Dr. Burr Reeve Abbe, '54 M. S., died at his home in Hartford, Ct., Saturday, March 13, of heart trouble. Mr. Abbe was born in Litchfield in November, 1830, and was a son of Alanson Abbe, '21M.S. Before entering Yale he spent two years in California at the time of the gold fever. He took his degree of M. D. at the Medical School in 1854 and practiced for a time in Enfield, Conn., and in Westport, Mass. Not long after graduation he went to China as a commission merchant, mainly in teas, and practiced medicine as occasion demanded.

In the Fall of 1865 Dr. Abbe went to Hartford and opened an office as stockbroker, in which business he remained until the time of his death. One of his best friends was former Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley. He was of a quiet nature, fond of books and devoted to his family and was for twenty-six years a member of the Center Church of Hartford.

Dr. Abbe was married twice. His first wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Nye, was drowned at sea. His second wife was Miss Julia A. Jones, daughter of the Rev. E. C. Jones, of the Congregational Church in Southington. Seven children survive him, of whom three, Burr R. Abbe, Jr., Harry A. G. Abbe and Franklin J. Abbe, are graduates of Yale in the classes of 1889, 1892 and 1893 respectively.

REV. CALVIN U. O. DERR, '91 T. S.

Rev. Calvin U. O. Derr died at his home in Spring City, Nenn, on March 12, from the effects of quinzey. Calvin Ursinus Olevianus Derr, the son of Levi K. and Rachel B. Derr, was born December 30, 1863, at Tamaqua, Penn. He received the Bachelor's degree at Ursinus College in 1888, and entered the Class of '91 in the Yale Theological School. Soon after graduating he became pastor of the First Reform Church of Spring City in which capacity he served until his death. He was widely known as a preacher throughout Eastern Pennsylvania.

ARTHUR BIDDLE, '73.

Arthur Biddle, '73, of Philadelphia, Pa., died from la-grippe at the Garden Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J., March 8, 1897. He was the son of George Washington and Maria McMurtrie Biddle and was born in Philadelphia, September 23, 1852. Mr. Biddle prepared for College at home and entered Yale with the class of 1873 in the third term of Freshman year. After graduation he spent three years in travel and study in Europe. On his return to this country he studied law in his father's office, beginning the practice of his profession in 1878. He entered into partnership with George W. Biddle, '63, and H. Le Barre Jayne in 1886. In May, 1891, Mr. Biddle entered the law firm of Biddle & Ward, Philadelphia. He received the degree of M. A. from Yale University in June, 1895, for his treatise on the "Law of Warranties in the Sales of Chattels." He was the author of a treatise in two volumes on the "Law of Insurance," which was published in 1893. The Philadelphia Public Ledger at that time called this law book "A great work on insurance," and said that Mr. Biddle had "supplied an exhaustive and analytical account of the law governing that important subject." At the time of his death, Mr. Biddle was a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the American Philosophical Society, and the Sons of the Revolution and of the University, Rittenhouse, Rabbit, Peuer, and University clubs of Philadelphia. He leaves a wife and three children. Mr. Biddle has always been a consistent Democrat and last year was candidate for City Solicitor against the present holder of the office.

DR. FREDERICK M. TURNBULL, '75 S.

The following facts have been received, in addition to those published in the last issue of The Weekly, concerning the life of Frederick Moncrieff Turnbull, M. D., '75S., who died at Taunton, Mass., January 15, 1897. He was the son of the late Rt. Rev. Robert Turnbull, D. D., of Hartford, Conn., and prepared for the Yale Scientific School at the Hartford High School. He was President and leader of the Sheff. Glee Club, and sang first tenor for some time on the University Glee Club. He took a preliminary course in medicine at Yale, and after graduation entered Jefferson College, Philadelphia, from which he graduated in 1878, receiving first appointment as resident physician and surgeon at the Presbyterian Hospital. He then practiced his profession in the West for a brief period, and finally settled down in Somerville, Mass., where he held the position of second assistant at the McLean Asylum for the Insane. About 1885 he began general practice in Boston, receiving the appointment of Assistant Surgeon of the Boston Dispensary, and also that of lecturer on Artistic Anatomy at the Cowles Art School.

In 1891 he married Miss Evelyn Hilton, daughter of James M. Hilton, Esq., of Cambridge, and afterward resided in that city. He was an invalid for four years prior to his death, and removed with his family to Cataumet, on Buzzard's Bay, for the benefit of his health. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the New England Psychological Society and was one of the first Yale men to join the University Club of Boston. His wife and three children survive him.

DR. OLAUS DAHL '89 T. S.

Dr. Olaus Dahl, '89T.S., died March 10 in the Chicago Hospital, Chicago, after a short illness. He was born in Denmark, but was of Norwegian parentage. He came to this country at an early age and received a collegiate education at Luther College, Iowa. Mr. Dahl graduated from the Yale Theological School in 1889 and received the degree of Ph. D. from Yale University in 1891.

For a short time he gave elementary instruction in the Scandinavian language at Yale. In 1894 he went to Chicago, where he began University Extension work under the auspices of the University of Chicago. He was thus occupied up to the time of his death.
