Obituary.

STEPHEN C. FOSTER, '40.

Stephen C. Foster, of the Class of Forty, died at his home in Downey, Los Angeles Co., Cal., in the last part of January. Mr. Foster was born in East Machias, Me., in 1820. After graduation he went South, and taught school in Amelia County, Virginia, in 1840 and 1841, and in Alabama during the next two years. He then studied medicine at the Louisville Medical College in New Orleans, and later practised medicine in Westport, Miss. In 1845 he crossed the plains to New Mexico as a trader and began practising medicine at Oposura, New Mexico. In January, 1846, he went to Santa Fé, and from there to California, as interpreter to Col. Cook, commanding the battalion of Iowa infantry during the Mexican war. In March, 1847, he arrived at Los Angeles, where he remained in the government employ as interpreter until May, 1849. He

The Family's Point of View.

IF you are thirty-five years old and are in good health, and are earning $100 a month, your life, on which this earning depends, is worth $22,700 in cash to-day to your family. If you die they lose the $100 a month, the equivalent of which is the $22,700. The cash value of your life to them is therefore $22,700. They lose that if you die.

You have made your family dependent on you: dependent on that $100 a month. You have put them at the risk of losing it by losing you.

If you had a piece of property which was bringing you in $100 a month and it stood a chance of being destroyed and so cutting off your income, you would not rest until you had taken enough of that $100 a month and insured yourself against the loss of it. You would consider that you had not done your duty by yourself until you had so protected yourself effectually.

Your life is just such a piece of property to your family: you have made it so. They need just that same effectual protection against its loss which may come any day. And they cannot protect themselves. They rely on you for that as much as they do for the $100 a month itself. They need protection against that loss even more than you need protection against the loss of your property. But they cannot have it unless you give it to them.

You have exposed them to the loss: you have made them dependent on you: you alone can protect them in their dependence.

THE CONNECTICUT MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Makes its plans from the family's point of view: to give them the most absolute protection, at the least cost to you and with perfect equity to both. It will be glad to serve you and your family in this great matter.

was Alcalde of Los Angeles in 1848-49 and a member of the convention to form the Constitution of California in 1849, and was state senator from 1851 until 1853. In 1854, '55 and '56 he was Mayor of Los Angeles. In August, 1848, he married Mercedes Lugo, a member of a prominent Spanish family. His wife and two sons survive him.

WILLIAM JARVIS CRAW, '52 S.

William Jarvis Craw died on October 26, 1897, at his home in Rowayton, Connecticut. He was a member of the first class which graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School.

He was born at Norwalk, Connecticut, January 27, 1830, and entered the Yale Analytical Laboratory, the present Scientific School, in 1848.

Soon after graduation Mr. Craw entered the field of commercial chemistry, in which he was successful. Within a period of two years, however, he suffered a complete breakdown in health, which made it necessary for him to abandon it. After his health failed he went into the oyster-growing business at Rowayton, where he lived the remainder of his life. He was a pioneer in artificial cultivation of oysters in the State of Connecticut.

On November 27, 1870, he was married to Miss Josephine Chapin of New Berlin, New York, who survives him.

LINUS M. CHILD, '55.

He graduated from Yale with the Class of Fifty-Five, and for the next three years studied law in Lowell and Cambridge, receiving his admission to the Massachusetts Bar in 1859. He practiced law in Lowell in the office of his father, but soon moved to Boston, where he rapidly became recognized as one of that city's leading lawyers.
