

ALUMNI NOTES.

[Graduates are invited to contribute to this column.]

'56—A class circular has just been sent out to the Class of Fifty-Six. Mr. Sidney E. Morse, as chairman, tells of the completion of the class book and transmits the treasurer's report. The letter of the committee on behalf of the class to the Rev. Theron Brown, who compiled the record of forty years, is given in this souvenir, and the acknowledgment of the class historian of the memorial which was given him. Mr. French, the class secretary, announces that the "class daughter," Mrs. Rowena Eakin Overall, has received the invitation of the Class to attend their next annual reunion, and she says she expects to be able to attend. This reunion will be coincident with the celebration of the 200th anniversary, in October, 1901.

The Ninety-Four Triennial.

WILKES-BARRE, PA., Feb. 19, 1898.

To the Editor of YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY:

Sir: The decision of Mr. Amos T. Harrington, Class Secretary of Ninety-Four, not to publish the Ninety-Four Triennial Record, for lack of financial support, is a matter of keen regret to us, and we hope he will see his way clear to alter this decision.

The reunion of our class last June was a most enjoyable occasion, and the Secretary's record of events which transpired at that time, together with other items of class history, would be a most valuable souvenir.

We would suggest that the Class Executive Committee come to the rescue of the Secretary in this emergency, and if necessary guarantee to make good from the class fund any deficiency that may arise from failure to sell enough books to cover cost of publication. Such action would, we are sure, meet with the approval of the entire class.

By all means let us have the edition de luxe.

Very respectfully,
LAWRENCE B. JONES.

Obituary.

DR. JOHN YALE, '41 M.S.

John Yale, of the Class of Forty-One, M.S., died in Beloit, Kansas, on Saturday, February 26th, aged 77 years. He was born in New Hartford, Conn., on April 2d, 1820, and was the son of Cyrus Yale and a grandson of Josiah Yale. He was a descendant of Elihu Yale. He received his education in the public schools of his native town and in the academies.

The Family's Point of View.

IF you are thirty-five years old and are in good health, and are earning $100 a month, your life, on which this earning depends, is worth $22,700 in cash to-day to your family. If you die they lose the $100 a month, the equivalent of which is the $22,700. The cash value of your life to them is therefore $22,700. They lose that if you die.

You have made your family dependent on you: dependent on that $100 a month. You have put them at the risk of losing it by losing you.

If you had a piece of property which was bringing you in $100 a month and it stood a chance of being destroyed and so cutting off your income, you would not rest until you had taken enough of that $100 a month and insured yourself against the loss of it. You would consider that you had not done your duty by yourself until you had so protected yourself effectually.

Your life is just such a piece of property to your family: you have made it so. They need just that same effectual protection against its loss which may come any day. And they cannot protect themselves. They rely on you for that as much as they do for the $100 a month itself. They need protection against that loss even more than you need protection against the loss of your property. But they cannot have it unless you give it to them.

You have exposed them to the loss: you have made them dependent on you: you alone can protect them in their dependence.

THE CONNECTICUT MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Makes its plans from the family's point of view: to give them the most absolute protection, at the least cost to you and with perfect equity to both. It will be glad to serve you and your family in this great matter.

JACOB L. GREENE, President. EDWARD M. BUNCE, Secretary.
JOHN M. TAYLOR, Vice-President. DANIEL H. WELLS, Actuary.

The greater part of his life, since graduation, has been spent in Ware, where he practiced his profession. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, was a Councillor in the Hampshire County Medical Society and was the first President of the Brooklyn Medical Club. His contributions to medical literature are widely known and are recognized authorities on the subjects of which he treats.

LEWIS RAYMOND HURLBUTT, '43.

Dr. Lewis Raymond Hurlbutt died at his home in Stamford, Conn., on Monday afternoon, February 14th, from a prolonged attack of pneumonia.

Dr. Hurlbutt was born at Wilton, Conn., on August 13, 1820. He entered Yale and graduated with the Class of 1843. At his graduation he went to Colchester, Conn., where for two years he was principal of Bacon Academy. In 1845 he assumed the position of principal of the Hopkins Grammar School of Hartford, where he remained until 1847. In that year he was appointed a tutor at Yale. He held this position until 1850, meanwhile taking a course in the Yale Medical School.

In 1850 he went to New York City to attend lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and was connected with the New York Hospital for one year. In 1852 he moved to Stamford.

There he married Miss Matilda L. Moen on April 11, 1854. Dr. Hurlbutt leaves four daughters and three sons.

He has always been interested in educational matters, and for the last 15 years has been a member of the school committee of Stamford.

SAMUEL A. HILLS, '46 M.S.

Dr. Samuel A. Hills, of the Class of Forty-Six, M.S., died at his home, 38 West 126th st., New York City, on Saturday, February 26th.

Dr. Hills was born in Glastonbury, Conn., in 1821, and was the son of Chester Hills. He entered the Yale Medical School in 1845, graduating with the Class of Forty-Six. The same year he moved to New York, where he has since lived in the northern part of the city. He was at one time the coroner of his district. Dr. Hills was a deacon of the Pilgrims' church, of which he was one of the founders.
