Another 'Traveling Class Letter.'

To the Editor of YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY:

Sir: Your article on "That Forty-Four Letter" in a recent WEEKLY, leads me to mention a letter which thirteen men of Ninety have kept up since graduation. Perhaps I should say a series of letters, for our plan is, that each of us has a month (we divide December) during which to write a letter and send it on to the next man in alphabetical order. In this way, each man writes an annual letter irrespective of any other and without waiting to receive his predecessor's. When a letter has gone the rounds, it is returned to me for safe-keeping. The main points of difference between the Forty-Four letter and ours are, that we do not write so frequently, and thereby do not cause an unnecessary burden; that there is no budget of letters to be delayed for the addition of a single one, in case of absence, and that we are not flooded with a number of letters, but hear monthly from one of our number, to whose letter any one else may add an item. One of our letters made the entire round in less than a month, being returned to me before the next man had written his.

While our's is only about one quarter the age of Forty-Four's letter, and has not covered so many miles, we have found that our plan has worked well and as far as I know, proved generally satisfactory. The extreme points from which letters have been sent are Berlin, Germany and Galesburg, Ill.

The writers are: Prof. F. Bedell, Cornell University; H. M. Bishop, New Haven; Dr. F. T. Brooks, Greenwich, Conn.; R. D. Crane, New York City; Prof. A. C. Crehore, Dartmouth University; H. T. Fowler, Galesburg, Ill.; E. M. Griswold, Erie, Pa.; Dr. E. P. Joslin, Boston, Mass.; Dr. W. C. Lusk, New York City; Prof. S. N. Morse, Williston Academy; H. L. Munger, Dayton, Ohio; F. W. Robinson, New York City; Wm. White, Philadelphia, Pa.

Yours truly,
R. D. CRANE, '90.
