FOUR FOR A FORTUNE

A Tale. Illustrated by F. C. JOHN. Post 8vo, Cloth, Ornamental, $1 25.

The story is one of adventure and of treasure-hunting. A French sailor comes to New York having in his possession a half-burned chart, the writing on which he is unable to make out. He falls in with two Americans, to whom he shows his map, and they manage to locate the probable spot design-nated on the chart. The four start in search of the treasure and have many thrilling and startling adventures both on land and on sea, the locality of the action being for the most part the picturesque little French colony of St. Pierre-Miquelon, a group of small islands off the south coast of Newfoundland.

Regiment after Regiment for the Sunny South.

THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY, the great thoroughfare of travel from Washington to the South, has for the last two weeks been moving a large number of special trains transporting troops to Tampa, Chickamauga, Mobile and New Orleans. This is the line that has the largest passenger locomotives in the world, and which has attracted so much attention in this and other countries. To give an idea as to the strength of the engines and capacity for high speed, one of these engines could pull a train of no less than thirty-three cars which would accommodate a regiment and over—such a train would be more than two-fifths of a mile long—and would attain on level track a speed sixty miles per hour. No locomotive in the world has so large combined cylinder-area and steam pressure. The total weight of the locomotive is seventy-five tons. The Southern, with its powerful equipment, can handle any number of troops, and can put the boys to the front in double-quick time.
