

GOOD GOLF AT ARDSLEY.

Yale Wins the Ardsley Cup at Golf but Loses Championship.

The second annual tournament of the Intercollegiate Golf Association was held May 4, 5, 6, at the Ardsley Casino on-the-Hudson, above Dobbs Ferry. There were two contests, one for the team championship and the other for the individual golf championship. The former was won by the Yale team and the latter by J. F. Curtis, of Harvard. The players were much handicapped by the prevailing bad weather.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia were represented by teams. The play began on Wednesday, when the Yale team defeated Princeton by a score of 12 to 8. The best score was made by Roderick Terry, Jr., '98, who completed the course in 83, lowering the amateur record he made last year for the course, by one stroke. Harvard defeated Columbia easily by a score of 33 to 0. On Thursday the final match was played between Yale and Harvard, which resulted in a victory for Yale by the score of 12 to 3. R. H. Crowell made the best score of the day, doing the 18 holes in 87 strokes. This is very good considering the condition of the links after the rain.

Twenty-four contestants entered for the eighteen-hole qualifying round, from which the eight players making the best eight scores were picked to compete for the championship, at match play. The men who qualified were: R. Terry, Jr., '98; J. Reid, Jr., '99; W. R. Betts, '98; J. H. Choate, Jr., Harvard; W. B. Cutting, Jr., Harvard; J. F. Curtis, Harvard; M. S. Barger, Harvard; W. D. Vanderpool, Princeton. The final round for the championship was between Reid and Curtis. It was very good golf, Curtis being strong on approaching and putting. Reid's strongest point was driving. Curtis won by five up and four to play.

Yale has won for the second time the Ardsley cup, which is in the form of a Grecian urn, and will become the property of the college first winning three tournaments.

"SPALDING'S"

It has come to this point, that almost every athlete, from the boy who is just old enough to swing a bat, to the seasoned golf expert of middle life, looks for this word on his athletic goods, as the simple and conclusive evidence of their quality. It's like "sterling" on the products of some silversmith of national and unblemished reputation.

If you will look in this space from time to time, we will try to suggest some things worth knowing about the goods of
