Obituary.

SAMUEL G. BUCKINGHAM, '33.

Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Buckingham died at his home in Springfield, Mass., July 12. He was born Nov. 18, 1812, and graduated from Yale in 1833 and three years later from the Yale Divinity School. His first pastorate was the Second Congregational Church in Millbury, Mass., at which place he remained ten years. From Millbury, Dr. Buckingham went to what is now the South Congregational Church at Springfield, Mass., in 1847, succeeding Rev. Noah Porter, who had accepted a professorship in Yale College, and remained there in active service until the time of his death. For many years Dr. Buckingham was a trustee of the Williston Seminary at Easthampton, and he served on the reconstruction and building committees of the Theological Department of Yale.

His chief literary production was: "The Life of William A. Buckingham, the War Governor of Connecticut"—his brother. Yale gave him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1869.

The Springfield Republican says: "It is the best beloved citizen of Springfield, the oldest Christian minister in years of age or years of service, the man whose presence, gradually withdrawn, will yet be missed more than that of scores of even well-known men among us,—to whom we must now bid farewell. . . . While he never became a champion of the new orthodoxy, he never antagonized it, and the change came as mellowly and cordially to his soul as dew to the grass or the west wind to the heated earth. He was of the school of the beloved disciple, to whom he was so often likened, and his influence was thus that of the lover, not of the hater, or even in any degree of the disputant."

ROBERT PALMER STANTON, '43.

Rev. Robert Palmer Stanton died at his home in Norwich, Conn., after a long illness. He was born in Belchertown, Mass., and entered Yale with the Class of Forty-Three. After his graduation from the Academical Department he took a course at the Yale Divinity School, and from his graduation until 1880 was actively engaged in preaching, principally in Connecticut. His last pastorate was in Greenville, Conn. where he remained from 1856 until 1880, retiring in that year.

CHARLES SAMUEL WARD, '63 M.S.

Dr. Charles Samuel Ward died at his home in Bridgeport, Conn., on July 31st from a cerebral hemorrhage. Dr. Ward was born in 1842, and graduated from the Yale Medical School in the Class of Sixty-Three. The same year he entered the service of the country as a medical cadet and served throughout the remainder of the war, in that capacity. After the war was over he began the practice of his profession in New York City, and at the time of his retirement a few years ago held a very large clientage. Since then he has passed the greater part of his time in Bridgeport.

Dr. Ward, himself coming from an ancient line, took great interest in genealogy and was for many years

National Secretary of the Society of the Colonial Wars. He was active also in the organization of the society known as the Barons of Runnymede. He leaves no family.

GEORGE TROWBRIDGE, '78.

Dr. George Trowbridge died suddenly of heart paralysis on Saturday morning, Sept. 12th, at his residence on West 47th street, New York. Dr. Trowbridge was born in New Haven in 1855, and graduated from Yale in the Class of Seventy-Eight. He entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York the next year, and received his diploma from that institution in 1881, but practiced medicine only a few years, giving it up to scientific and literary research. The funeral was held from the Brick Presbyterian Church, Thirty-Seventh and Fifth avenue, on Tuesday morning.

EDWARD WILSON JOHNSTONE, '92 S.

Edward Wilson Johnstone was instantly killed at the works of the United Verdi Copper Co. at Jerome, Ariz., on July 23, by the collapse of the walls of the assaying office in which Mr. Johnstone was working. He was born in Connellsville, Pa. in 1872 and prepared for Yale at Andover. After graduation from Yale in the Class of Ninety-Two S. he went to Butte, Mont., where he had charge of the building of a railroad and water works for a large mining concern. In two years he moved to Jerome, Ariz. and undertook the construction of a railroad from Jerome to Phoenix in the same state, which he successfully carried out. When the superintendency of the United Verdi Copper Co. was offered him in 1897 he accepted it and remained with that company until the time of his sudden death.

Smith's Good Golfing.

Walter B. Smith, '99, met Findlay S. Douglas in the finals for the golf championship of the United States on the Morris County links, Morristown, N. J. last Saturday, but was defeated. Smith's work through the whole tournament was quite phenomenal, he having beaten many of the best players in America.

An account of the doings of Yale men throughout the country in golf and tennis will be printed next week.

DEATH OF T. W. MILLER, '97.

Sheffield Scientific School, of Yale, graduating in 1896. He was first employed by the Susquehanna Coal Co., but later became Secretary and Treasurer of the Hygiene Milk Co.

He was always passionately fond of military life and in March, 1897, joined as a private Co. D, 9th Regt., then National Guard of Pennsylvania. He was elected Second Lieutenant of Co. B, July 1, 1897, and on May 5, 1898, while the 9th was at Mt. Gretna, he was elected Captain of Co. B, 9th Regt., Pennsylvania Volunteers. In that office he served up to the time of his death.

The same buoyant cheerfulness and consideration that marked his social relations in private life were characteristic of him on the field. Not a day passed but that he did not visit the sick of his company and offer them all the assistance and consolation at his command. While a strict disciplinarian and thoroughly versed in the military manual and code, he had the rare faculty of maintaining a high standard of efficiency and discipline without being overbearing and dictatorial. He was born with the military inclination and only a few years ago was eager to join the regular army and devote all of his time to the service. but was dissuaded from doing so by his parents. He was descended from a patriotic and military ancestry. Elijah Shoemaker, who was killed in the Wyoming massacre, was his great-great-grandfather, as was also Col. Nathan Denison, who was in the same battle.

The funeral was held on Thursday, Sept. 8th. Among the honorary pall bearers were T. B. Ryman, '97 S. and Dorrance Reynolds, Yale 1902.
