MADISON SQUARE.

The Freshman Game.

The Yale-Princeton Freshman football game will probably be played at Princeton on the morning of the University game, Nov. 12. This was the date named by Yale as the only time possible for the teams to meet. It is expected that Princeton will agree, although no reply to Yale's proposal has been received, as the WEEKLY goes to press.

With regard to the Harvard game about the same condition of affairs exists, and no date has been settled upon. However, it will probably be held at New Haven, Saturday, November 19, on the morning of the University game.

B. C. Rumsey, recently elected Captain, who has played full-back the entire season, broke his leg in practice last Thursday. On Tuesday, W. M. Fincke, quarterback, was chosen to succeed him.

The whole team is light, especially behind the line. The center trio, however, are strong, and all the line men play well together on the defensive and open up good holes for the backs. Behind the line there is a decided lack of team work, although the backs are fast individual players.
