He took a cold Nov. 19, when he played golf in the rain, in a tournament held on the links of the Richmond Hill Golf Club, of which he was a member. The cold developed into pneumonia, which caused his death. He left his office Nov. 18, to practice for the tournament in which he was to play and in which he won a prize, and did not return there. His funeral was held at the residence of his parents, at Newburgh, N. Y., Thursday, Dec. 1, 1898.

Henry Pierson Johnes, son of Goldsmith D. Johnes and Mary Gould Beers, was born at Newburgh, N. Y., March 26, 1860, and there pursued his preparatory studies at the Newburgh Academy. After leaving Yale he attended the Columbia Law School, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1883, and from that time on engaged in practicing law in New York City. He spent one year in the office of Alexander & Green, and then became managing clerk for Stimson & Williams, which position he filled for seven years, after which he began to practice for himself. His office was at 55 Liberty street. He lived in New York City, and was unmarried.
