Literary Notes.

Under the head of "Money in Literature." Edgar Saltus writes as follows in Collier's Weekly:

"Old Sleuth," lately deceased, is reported in the practice of his profession to have accumulated half a million. That is a good deal of money to make by the sweat of one's pen. But there are some who have done, and there are others who are doing better yet. Mr. Moody, for instance. Already one book of his has brought him in over twice that amount. Then there is Mr. Kipling. He began quite modestly. To-day he accepts twenty-five cents per word in England and half a dollar here. We don't blame him. On the contrary. The point is though, where at that rate is Old Sleuth, where too is Mr. Moody? Mrs. Humphrey Ward is less monopolian. In eight years with four novels this lady has cleared three hundred thousand dollars. Should she be spared to us she may beat Scott, who made two million. At present she is only seventy-five thousand behind Anthony Trollope, a hundred thousand behind Bulwer and two hundred thousand behind Dickens. That is nothing. Besides, in comparison to Mrs. Pinkham, she is simply nowhere. For a poem entitled

"Sleep," Tennyson received a guinea a word. For the "Miserables" Hugo received eighty thousand, and for "Sappho" Daudet received two hundred thousand dollars. We believe Mrs. Pinkham to be much better paid. Miss Corelli is her one rival. The sums which this delicious bareback, sawdusted circus-rider of the fountain pen has gathered together, while unbelievable, are wholly deserved. There is but one literary cuss who has done better. What his name is escapes us. We forget, too, the titles of his works. They are of the variety known as subscription, and on their sales he has built a square Chicago block. There should be a moral to all tales, and for the benefit of young writers there is one to this: In literature, virtuosity is its own reward."

Dodd, Meade & Company, publishers of the Bookman, announce that December was the best month the Bookman ever had; better in subscription and better in advertising than ever before. This was in spite of the increased competition in the field of literary monthlies. The publishers announce the circulation of the Bookman as averaging 13,500 copies.

Rudyard Kipling has written a poem entitled "The White Man's Burden," evidently called forth by the colonial development of the United States. It will appear in the February issue of McClure's Magazine, although the editors did not receive the poem until after the Magazine was on the press. The frontispiece was taken out, and the poem was printed in its place. The poem is of considerable length. Here are given some extracts from it:

Take up the White Man's burden—
Send forth the best ye breed—
Go, bind your sons to exile
To serve your captives' need;
To wait, in heavy harness,
On fluttered folk and wild—
Your new-caught sullen peoples,
Half devil and half child.

* * * * *
Take up the White Man's burden—
The savage wars of peace—
Fill full the mouth of Famine,
And bid the sickness cease;

* * * * *
The ports ye shall not enter,
The roads ye shall not tread,
Go, make them with your living
And mark them with your dead.

* * * * *
By all ye will 'or whisper,
By all ye leave or do,
The silent sullen peoples
Shall weigh your God and you.

Kipling's short stories in McClure's Magazine have turned out to be the most successful fiction series that the publishers have ever secured. The January number is reported out of print, with nearly 15,000 unsupplied subscribers. The February edition of McClure's Magazine is 70,000 copies larger than that of February of a year ago.

Representation of Schools.

A comparison of the representation from the principal preparatory schools in the present Freshmen class with that in last year's Class is given below. For this purpose ten of the leading preparatory schools have been selected: Andover, St. Paul's, Hotchkiss, Hillhouse High School, Hartford High School, Lawrenceville, Hill School, University School, Cleveland, Cutler's and Groton.

Andover as usual leads in the number entered, having sent down 69 this year, against 59 last year. The Hotchkiss, Lawrenceville, and St. Paul delegations continue about the same as last year, but Hill School sends considerably fewer numbers. The Hillhouse and Hartford High Schools show a large increase, and Groton and Cutler's, which had but few entered last year, have now sent good-sized delegations. The University School has the same number in the Freshmen class this year as last. The statistics are as follows:

SCHOOL.	1901.	1900 S.	Total.	1901.	1900 S.	Total.
Andover	40	19	59	48	21	69
St. Paul's	17	15	32	21	10	31
