Harvard Crew Has Dash.

Coach E. C. Storrow of Harvard recently made public this statement about his crew:

"Since the order in which the crew will row has been settled but a few days its capabilities are known to neither oarsmen nor coaches. This does not mean that the men have not had plenty of work and been thoroughly tried out,—in fact, even more than usual. Besides rowing in the class and club races, the latter on May 22, the two University crews have had constant trial spins that have amounted to races. By this plan the work has been much more interesting, while the only loss has been the long period of rowing together, which Yale has had.

"As a whole the crew is not thoroughly well together. The catch is fairly good, although the men still clip considerably. The weakest faults are great slowness in getting the hands away after the finish of the stroke and in following with the bodies in the recovery. The blades come out of the water too soon. At times the crew has shown some speed and considerable life and dash."

The general opinion seems to be that Harvard's crew, while not a finished one, is very fast. The men average between two and three pounds lighter than Yale's.

Poughkeepsie Races.

The annual regatta of the Inter-collegiate Rowing Association between the Universities of Wisconsin, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Cornell will be held on the Poughkeepsie Highland Course, on the Hudson, on June 26 and 27.

There will be three events this year. The Freshman eight-oared race between the Universities of Wisconsin, Cornell, Columbia, and Pennsylvania, and the four-oared race between Cornell and Pennsylvania, both of which events will be held, June 26. The eight-oared race between the University crews of the four above named universities will be rowed June 27. The race, which will be governed by practically the same conditions as it was last year, will take place over the Poughkeepsie inside course of four miles.

It is the intention of the Poughkeepsie Highland Amateur Rowing Association, which has superseded the Citizen's Committee of past years, to have a regatta on a much larger scale next year the program of which will probably include Freshmen and University races in each event: single scull, double scull, four-oared race, and eight-oared race, besides other events.

The Yale's Guns.

The two Maxim Guns, "Eli" and "Handsome Dan," presented to the United States Government for use on the Cruiser "Yale," by the students and graduates, will be on exhibition during Commencement week, at the foot of the main staircase of the Gymnasium. The guns have been thoroughly polished and put in order, and are now in perfect condition. The cartridge case, which was used when the "Rita" was fired upon, can also be seen. The case has its especial interest, as the capture of the "Rita" brought the "Yale" $75,000.

If you miss any name or names in the Yale War Record, published in the special issue of June 7, will you not communicate as soon as you see this, with the YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY office: A supplementary record will be printed in the Commencement number. Three or four names have already been secured to add to the total, and there should be others.

Nathan Hale Memorial.

The old district school at East Hadam, Conn., where Nathan Hale taught after his graduation from Yale in 1773, is to be preserved and turned into a monument to his memory. The building has recently been bought by Richard H. Greene, Yale '62, who has caused it to be moved to a site on the east bank of the Connecticut River, just a short distance away from the original site. Mr. Greene will turn the building over to the Daughters of the American Revolution, who will care for it and place in it many relics of Nathan Hale, now in possession of the society. The schoolhouse will be dedicated as a permanent Nathan Hale Memorial on the anniversary of his execution, Sept. 22.

Professor Ladd's Trip Abroad.

Prof. George T. Ladd of the Philosophical Department of Yale, will go abroad this year for an extended trip in the East. He has accepted invitations from the Japanese Imperial Education Society to deliver his course of lectures on "Psychology as Applied to the Problem of Education," before that body, and from the Imperial University to speak on "Speculative or Theoretical Psychology." His lectures will be delivered in English, except at the Imperial University, where translations will be furnished.
