

WHICH KIND OF ... A POLICY ...

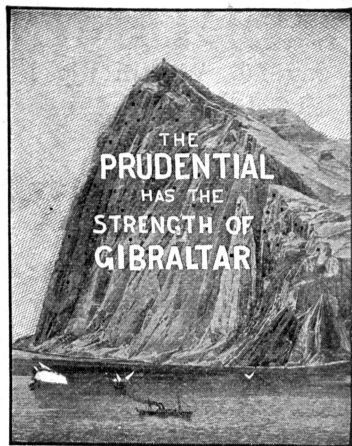

to buy is often difficult to determine. As combining the features of investment with protection, the Twenty Payment Life and the Twenty Year Endowment Policies are very popular.

THE PRUDENTIAL

will gladly explain these policies to those who desire to learn more about them.

President Harris of Amherst.

Rev. Dr. George Harris, Professor of Theology in Andover Seminary, Andover, Mass., was recently elected to the presidency of Amherst College.

Dr. Harris was born at East Machias, Me., April 1, 1844, and graduated from Amherst in 1866. Three years later he graduated from the Andover Theological Seminary and after preaching a few years in Auburn, Me., he accepted a call to the Central Congregational Church of Providence, R. I. In 1883 he was made Abbot Professor of Theology in the Andover Seminary and continued in that place up to the end of the college year just closed. During the last few years he has acted as president of Andover Seminary. He has been a strong writer on theological subjects. Amherst conferred the degree of D.D. on Professor Harris in 1883.

ture and Commerce, life member of the House of Peers, type of those scholars of two hemispheres through whom the West would welcome the East to share in the inheritance of Hebrew religions, Greek Art, Roman Law and Nineteenth Century Science."

Leonard Wood, "Harvard Doctor of Medicine, army surgeon, single-minded soldier, life-saver, restorer of a province."

Arthur Twining Hadley (absent by necessity), "teacher and scholar, president-elect of Yale University, heir of her strong traditions, prophet of her upward career."

William Thomas Sampson, "Rear-Admiral of the United States Navy, an officer foresighted, forearmed, ready at every point, the American expert in high command."

Jules Cambon, "Ambassador of France, in whom we salute a great nation, once New England's foe, then the 13 colonies' ally, now comrade in the incessant struggle to achieve the diffused intelligence and character whereon must rest republican institutions."

George Harris, "preacher to the University, President of the Faculty of Andover Theological Seminary, a farseeing leader in the Congregational Church."

The treasury of the Princeton University Athletic Association, which includes the accounts of the football, baseball and track organizations, shows a deficit for the six months to August 1 of about $3,500.

Judge Oliver Wendell Holmes, Harvard '61, who was given the degree of LL.D. by Yale in 1886, has been appointed by Gov. Wolcott, Chief Justice of Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Harvard Honorary Degrees.

[Worcester Gazette.]

Not only does a degree from Harvard mean more than a literary title from most other universities, but the recipient must appreciate the discriminating and happily-worded compliment that President Eliot always utters in awarding it. People who attend Harvard commencements now anticipate these terse introductions as the awards are made. The characterizations this week were felicitous as the following instance shows:

Kentarō Kenako, "Harvard Bachelor of Laws, formerly chief secretary of the Imperial House of Peers in Japan, and Vice-Minister and Minister of Agricul-
