

YALE OBITUARIES.

DAVID LOW HUNTINGTON, '55.
Lieutenant-Colonel David Low Huntington, M.D., U. S. A. (retired), died in Rome, Italy, December 20, 1899.

HARRY COURTLAND GAUSE, '99 S.
Record was made in the last issue of the WEEKLY of the death of Harry Courtland Gause, which occurred in New Haven, December 28. On December 8, Mr. Gause was operated on for appendicitis and was apparently convalescing rapidly when a severe hemorrhage so weakened his heart action that he was unable to rally. Inasmuch as many of his friends who knew of his illness supposed that he was recovering rapidly, the fatal termination of his disease came as a great shock.

Mr. Gause was the oldest son of Harry Taylor Gause and Virginia Ingersoll Gause of Wilmington, Del. His father is President of the Harlan & Hollingsworth Company of that city.

Mr. Gause was taking post graduate work in the Sheffield Scientific School, from which he graduated last June. As a student in College, he was very successful. This fact is attested by the special honors he received at graduation, and by his appointment to a graduate scholarship. It is further signally shown by his election, in senior year, to the honorary society of Sigma Xi. He had taken the select course in the School from which Sigma Xi has almost never chosen any of its members, taking some ground that its membership was reserved for those in purely scientific work—a matter which has caused a great deal of feeling and discussion in the School. His selection from this course was, therefore, a peculiar testimonial to his ability and industry. In his graduate work he was taking a course leading to the degree of Master of Science, and his work here has been excellent.

As a member of his class his record was likewise most enviable. The tribute contained in the resolutions adopted by his Class, which are printed below, was a spontaneous one, the high endorsement and tribute being both sincere and very deeply felt.

The following resolutions have been adopted by his classmates:

"Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom has taken from us our beloved friend and classmate, Harry Courtland Gause; and
"Whereas, We, his classmates, mourn the loss of a true friend, an unselfish and large-hearted character; an ardent and sincere Christian; one who by his sterling qualities of mind and heart endeared himself to us all; be it
"Resolved, That we extend our deepest sympathy to his bereaved family; and be it further
"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to them and published in the Yale papers.

"For the Class of '99,S.,

"A. HOWLETT DURSTON,
President.
"HERBERT T. HERR,
Secretary.
"OSBORN A. DAY."

WALTER S. THOMAS, '99 S.

Walter S. Thomas, '99 S., died of typhoid fever at West Chester, Pa., Dec. 31st, after an illness of a week.

WILLIAM WASHBURN MURSICK, '99 S.

William Washburn Mursick, '99 S., died in Steubenville, Ohio, December 31. He had been ill for about two weeks with typhoid fever.

Prof. Norton's Christmas.

In the issue of the Harvard Crimson of December 18, there appeared the following: "Professor Norton invites all students of the various departments of the University who may remain in Cambridge during the Christmas holidays, away from home, to give him the pleasure of their company on Christmas eve, from 8 to 10 o'clock.

"Shady Hill, 18 Dec., 1899."

On this the Harvard Crimson commented as follows: "Students who will not have the opportunity to pass their holidays at home will appreciate Professor Norton's invitation for Christmas eve. Year after year he has sent out this invitation until now his annual 'open house,' on the night before Christmas, the night of all nights, has become a regular part of the highest side of Harvard life."

The...
Long Pull

From January to June, and then twenty minutes of a long, strong pull and it's all over—victory or defeat. What a siege that is! And think of the substitutes who get all the worst of it and none of the best of it. They are beginning now to reward members of second elevens. Where do crew substitutes come in?

Most arrangements are now made for the great intercollegiate contests of the Spring and Summer of 1900. We know that from consulting our order books.

President Hadley at Ithaca.

[Hartford Courant]

Every new public utterance of President Hadley insures a wider and more attentive audience for the next one. He always has something to say worth hearing, and he knows how to say it. He is absolutely sincere, and there isn't a note of pessimism in his voice. He faces the future, political, social, industrial, with a cheery faith that things are working together in this world for good and not for evil. He does not believe for a minute that the burden of new duties and responsibilities laid upon this country by the events of the last two years is going to drag it down to perdition. Some of his statements of fact and deductions in the brief discourse on "Economic Theory and Political Morality" at Ithaca yesterday will provoke dissent—perhaps angry dissent—but what he has said in it will set intelligent people thinking, the country over.
