Sophomore year to take a position with the well known firm of Oelrichs & Co., in New York, of which his father was a member. His work with that firm began with a clerkship, then led him to England and Germany, where he perfected himself as an expert in wools. Afterwards he was engaged for a number of years in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and South America, as a wool buyer, and finally, on March 1, last, he was admitted into the firm as a junior partner. His wedding with Miss Amy Dana, of New Haven, was to have taken place in December. His death came almost instantaneously. While taking his customary early morning ride his horse became frightened and uncontrollable in Van Cortlandt Park, and in some manner came in contact with a tree, hurling his rider to the ground.

"In the two years that he was with us in College, he had greatly endeared himself to his classmates. He was of a quiet and retiring disposition, yet thoroughly earnest in all that he undertook and we knew that he could be counted on for the best that was in him on all occasions and that best of no mean order. The affection we had for him was the affection that accompanies esteem, founded on an appreciation of his own upright character, clean wholesome spirit and thorough loyalty to his friends.

"Now that death has suddenly cut him down in the midst of the brightest prospects of his life, when the rewards of his years of honest endeavor were well within his grasp, we would convey, on behalf of the Class of Yale Eighty-Eight to those nearest and dearest to him, our appreciation of those high qualities in him they mourn and our earnest sympathy in their grief."

Ninety-Six Dinner.

The annual New York Ninety-Six Dinner is to be held at the Yale Club, No. 17 East Twenty-Sixth Street, New York, on Saturday, January 27, 1900, at 7 o'clock.

The committee in charge announces that Cordial Welcomes to this Agreeable Game are for sale at two dollars each, net. This purely nominal outlay includes rich red wine, imported cigars, instrumental music and a speech by Chairman Peck—everything in fact excepting car fare. Last Winter's large gathering and the enthusiastic character of the Triennial Reunion indicate that a very full attendance may be expected this year. Every Ninety-Six man is invited, and those who have not yet received personal notices are requested to communicate with one of the undersigned immediately, as the Club's seating capacity is limited.

McKee Dunn McKee, 17 East 26th St., New York; J. Frederick Eagle, 40 Wall St., New York; Johnston deForest, 40 Wall St., New York; Clarence S. Day, Jr., 40 Wall St., New York.
