

YALE ALUMNI NOTES.

Please report concerning yourself, facts which should be recorded in this column. Make report, also, about Yale men you know, and on matters, proper for record here, concerning which you have definite record. This will make the page of the greatest possible value. On request the Alumni Weekly will be glad to send postals to those who are in the way of getting, more or less often, Yale news and Yale personals.

'70—The Brooklyn Eagle commenting on the changes in the New York Evening Post staff on the retirement of Mr. Godkin and the appointment of Mr. Horace White to the editorship, says: "Mr. White's right hand associate in the office as a result of the change which has occurred will be Mr. Edward P. Clark of Brooklyn. A Yale man, early the Managing Editor under Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican, at a time Editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel, and then an editorial writer for the Brooklyn Union, Mr. Clark went to the Post in the middle of the eighties, and has been one of its most industrious, faithful and effective writers, advancing from position to position with the years. He is in entire sympathy with Mr. Horace White in all his ideas, and the two men will continue to be assisted by the able and brilliant crops of editors and correspondents that have distinguished that newspaper. Mr. Clark is a master of a clear style, is one of the most industrious and earnest thinkers on the press and has the great gift of persistence and of interesting reiteration of views, which have made the Post, with his pen, so powerful against vested or intended wrongs. He simply destroyed the chances of the Blair bill of spoliation in the name of education by a campaign of extraordinary power and duration in which he led the thought of the press of the country and by moral and logical power commanded the opinion of the Congress of the United States. The general public does not know, what all newspaper men are likely to know, who are the principal workers on great dailies. Mr. Clark's place on that roll is deservedly high."

'76—The New York Tribune of recent date said: "One of the most significant features of the George Washington Memorial Association celebration the other day at Washington was the presentation of a letter from Cardinal Gibbons by Professor Charles Clinton Swisher of the Columbian University. Dr. Swisher is the ideal type of the nineteenth century college professor, with a tact and breadth of view which extensive travel and large experience with men and affairs have given him. His speech of introduction was the most appropriate and graceful of the occasion. With a warrantable stretch of imagination he alluded to the most Reverend John Carroll as the Prelate of the Revolution, the life-long friend of Washington, the trusted colleague of Franklin, whose priestly robe but ill concealed the diplomat and statesman. Dr. Swisher spoke eloquently of the Puritan of New England, the Catholic of Maryland, the French Huguenot and the German Lutheran, whose antagonisms had been harmonized by the tolerance of Washington, and lauded the farsighted statesmanship of the early Catholic settlement of Maryland, whose colonial assembly was the first political body on this continent to establish complete religious toleration."

Mr. Meyer supplemented this by offering to be one of fifty citizens who will pay $10 each to any person who kills a burglar or highwayman in the act of committing robbery. Alderman Alling is anxious to repudiate any relationship to the dead-highwayman ordinance. He wants one drawn which will offer a reward for the capture and conviction of such offenders."

"I sent to each of you during July last a copy of our Sexennial Record. As far as I can tell, it has been received by all except Putney. If any of you know his address please send it to me. I send to each of you herewith the last annual report of the Yale Alumni Fund Association, which shows that this Association has paid over to the Treasurer of the University for current expenses $80,000 in the last eight years. A generous support of this Association will be a most efficient aid to the Bi-centennial Committee, between the members of which and the Association there is the closest harmony of purpose. The few alumni who possess large wealth can be more confidently depended upon, if the great body of the alumni will contribute in proportion to their means. The opportunity is now offered to continue to the new administration of Yale the loyal support which was given to the old. We have 86 names on this honor list; let us raise the number to 100 at once. The names of contributors only, and not the amount of their contributions, are published. Send what you can to me; anything from fifty cents up will be thankfully received and promptly acknowledged."
