National Bank and Treasurer of Dummer Academy. He was married to Miss Charlotte A. Chapman, shortly after leaving College. Five children of that union are still living, Mrs. Moseley having died some years since.

THOMAS HARLAND, EX-'49.

Thomas Harland, ex-'49, died of pneumonia at St. George, Staten Island, N. Y., Wednesday, April 25. Mr. Harland was born at Norwich, Conn., and entered Yale with the Class of Forty-Nine. At the end of Freshman year, however, he left College and began the study of law. After admission to the bar in New York, he was for a time associated with the late E. F. Underhill, in the management of a coöperative home in East Fourteenth Street, in which Horace Greeley, Stephen P. Andrews and other reformers of that day were interested. Later he took a position on the editorial staff of the New York World, but when the Internal Revenue Bureau was established at Washington in 1862, he joined its force, where he did much valuable work. For a time he worked in the Patent Office, devising the American system which is now in use, but was later recalled to the Revenue Department as Deputy Commissioner, the office having been specially created for him. In 1867, Mr. Harland left Washington and began the practice of law in New York with Daniel G. Rollins, under the firm name of Harland & Rollins. At the time of his death he was consulting counsel in the firm of Rollins & Rollins, New York City.

Mr. Harland's surviving brother is General Edward Harland, Yale '53, of Norwich. He leaves a widow and one son, Henry Harland, the novelist and editor of "The Yellow Book," who resides in London.

JUDGE COOKE LOUNSBURY, '52.

Judge Cooke Lounsbury, '52, one of the oldest members of the Hartford County Bar Association, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Herbert E. Strong, in Hartford, Conn., Monday evening, April 23, from apoplexy, having suffered a stroke the preceding Wednesday.

Judge Lounsbury was born in Prospect, Conn., April 20, 1828, and prepared for Yale at the Episcopal Academy in Cheshire. After graduation he taught school for a short time in the Academy at Wethersfield, Conn., and then entered the office of Colonel Dexter R. Wright, Yale '48 L.S., in Meriden, for the study of law. He was admitted to the bar in New Haven in 1855 and at once formed a partnership with Colonel Wright for the practice of law in Meriden. Two years later, he moved to Hartford and practiced his profession there until the first of last April, when he retired from active life. In 1859 he was admitted to practice in the United States Courts and in 1862 was clerk of the Connecticut House of Representatives. Judge Lounsbury was Judge of the City Court of Hartford in 1864, '65 and '66, and Prosecuting Attorney for Hartford County from March, 1875 to July, 1881. He was married twice, his first wife dying August 20, 1861. On June 7, 1864, he married Isabella Spalding, who survives him with three children, Mrs. Herbert E. Strong, James Allen Lounsbury and Ralph Reed Lounsbury, Yale '94.

JONATHAN BOYNTON DILL, '93.

Jonathan Boynton Dill, '93, died suddenly of brain fever at Patton, Pa., Sunday, April 29, at 3.40 p. m. Funeral services are held to-day (Wednesday, May 2) at 1 p. m., at the home of A. E. Patton, Curwinstown, Pa.
