Yale 1903 2; Harvard 1903 4.

The Harvard Freshman Nine won the ball game at Yale Field, Saturday, May 12, over the Yale Freshmen by the score of 4 to 2. Yale lost the game principally through poor base running and inability to hit Clarkson when they had men on bases. Harvard took the lead in the first inning with three singles, which with a stolen base gave them two runs. Alsop, the Yale pitcher, was hit hard, while Clarkson of Harvard was as steady as a veteran, and struck out 13 men.

A Correction.

In the account of the California games in this paper, last week, it was stated that Gleason ran third in the hundred yards dash. This was an error. Blount finished in third place. Gleason did not run in the hundred.

Spring Regatta.

The Spring Regatta at Lake Whitney, Saturday, May 12, although more than a week earlier than many years past, fell upon a beautiful, warm day, and drew a large crowd. The seven-foot wire fence, built by the Water Company, to protect the banks of the lake, crowded the spectators into the sandy road on the East bank of the lake and robbed the scene of a great deal of its former picturesqueness. There was no choice for one but to sit out of sight of the racing or to stand in the dust of the road, peeping through the wire fence, or be jammed among the horses and carriages on the bridge.

The Class Crew racing was good, better than it has ever been before, because the crews have had much coaching; but the scrub crews rowed in probably poorer form than since scrub crew rowing began. They had had little coaching. There were only three of the latter entered, the "Coystrels," the "Harlequins" and the "Pirates." The "Harlequins" won. For the first time in years the Senior Class was represented by a crew. The Sophomore Crew beat the First and Second Freshmen, and the Juniors in the finals, thereby winning the class races. A stiff breeze, which blew against the oarsmen, prevented anything like fast time. During the afternoon the University Eight and the University Four rowed an exhibition race, the latter winning over the short course by a few feet, having had a half dozen lengths the better of the start.

The summary:
 First race—Juniors beat Seniors by half a length. Time 5 m. 11 s.
 Second race—Sophomores beat First and Second Freshmen by a length.
