The Week in Baseball.

Rain interfered greatly with the practice of the Yale Nine during the past week, and caused the postponement of the games with the Orange Athletic Club at Orange, last Saturday and with Georgetown at New Haven, Monday, May 21. The latter will be played at New Haven, Friday of this week.

An important change made in practice since the Lafayette game, which may be only temporary, was the substitution of Guernsey for Brown at third base in an attempt to strengthen the batting of the Nine. Rumsey was given a trial in left field, but his play there and at the bat was weak.

Yale 7; Lafayette 1.

The game between the Yale Nine and that of Lafayette at the Field, Wednesday afternoon, May 16, was one of the slowest and most uninteresting that has been played there this season. The score was seven runs to one, in Yale's favor, the home players making no particular effort to profit by the ragged work of the visitors. Cook, Cunha and Sullivan made seven of the ten Yale hits, the former leading with three and Cunha and Sullivan two each. Quinby made Yale's only error on an easy chance on a slow grounder to second. The shortstops on both nines handled a large percentage of the batted balls and did their work without errors.

Yale 1903 16; Betts 6.

In a long and uninteresting game, the Freshmen Nine defeated Betts Academy at Stamford by the score of 16 to 6. The Freshmen showed the best work of the season in the field, and the batting was fairly strong. Betts' fielding was very bad, thirteen errors being credited to the Nine.

Yale 1903 5; St. Paul's 0.

The Yale Freshmen Nine played a fast, clean game with the Nine of St. Paul's School, at Garden City, L. I., Thursday, May 17, and won 5 to 0. Wescott pitched better than before this season, allowing only four scattered hits. The Freshmen were weak at the bat, except Oglesby, who made two singles and two doubles.

Baseball Games of Last Week.

The following college baseball games were played last week:

Monday, May 14—At Lawrenceville, Princeton 17, Lawrenceville 0.

Tuesday, May 15—At Cambridge, Harvard 8, Lafayette 2.

Wednesday, May 16—At Princeton, Princeton 11, Brown 6; at Amherst, Amherst 8, Columbia 3.

Thursday, May 17—At Philadelphia, University of Pennsylvania 11, Brown 2.

Friday, May 18—At Hanover, Dartmouth 3, Wesleyan 1.

Saturday, May 19—At Ithaca, Princeton 7, Cornell 0.

The heavy rain on Saturday prevented most of the games of the eastern colleges.

Yale's Intercollegiate Entries.

The twenty-fifth Intercollegiate Track Meet will be held at Columbia Field, New York, Friday and Saturday, May 25 and 26. More men and better men are entered this year in the events than ever before, and owing to the probability of the different smaller colleges taking seconds and thirds, and even first from the larger colleges, it is impossible to forecast the result of the meet. Yale will take only thirteen or fourteen men to the games. Richards for the hundred; Richards and Boardman for the two-hundred; Boardman and Brennan for the quarter; Smith and Poynter for the half; Weston for the mile, and possibly Speer and Teel; Fincke and Thomas for the low and high hurdles; Beck for the shot; Stillman for the hammer and Capt. Johnson, Adriance and Hord for the pole vault. Yale will not enter the two-mile run, or the high and broad jumps.

CAMPUS HABITS

Are very strange habits, sometimes. Academic fashions of dress are not like other fashions. Our idea is to have what our customers want. Our student stock is for the students; our graduate stock for graduates; and each for the other as much as each pleases. Seen the new styles of straws? Drop into the new store when you come to the game.

A summer of real roughing in the woods of Maine. Conducted by E. H. Wells (Yale '93), lately of the Hopkinson School, Boston, and by A. S. Gregg Clarke of the Gunnery School, Washington, Conn. Civilization is left behind and the summer is spent on the Penobscot and Allagash waters. Special and separate provision is made for those who wish to be tutored for college examinations. Address ALUMNI WEEKLY or MR. WELLS, 72 Mansfield Street, New Haven, and a prospectus will be sent.
