After graduation from Yale he spent two years in the office of the provost marshal in New Haven, studying law in the Yale Law School at the same time. He did not graduate from the School, but was admitted to the Connecticut bar about 1866, and practiced for a short time in New Haven, later going to New York, where he was a member of the firm of Rust & Gates. From 1878 to 1888 he was in partnership with Mr. Frederick B. Ely of Boston, but failing health about that time compelled him to give up active work, and he returned to his home in Monson. He was unmarried.

At the end of ten years he retired and took up the real estate business in which he has since continued. THE LATE JOSEPH W. ALPORT, '97.

The following resolutions have been adopted by a committee appointed for that purpose by members of Ninety-Seven at a meeting at the Yale Club, May 11:

"Whereas, The Class of Ninety-Seven has again given to the services of its country one of its members, and is called upon to mourn the loss of Joseph W. Alport, who died in the Philippines while serving as a Corporal in the Forty-Third Regiment, United States Volunteer Infantry.

"Resolved, That the Class express its deep sense of loss in his death. It was singularly true of him that every member of the Class was his friend, for his generosity, his warm heart, his never failing good nature and kindly sympathy, endeared him to all. His death from wounds received in action was a worthy close to a life characterized by manliness and true courage.

"Resolved, That these resolutions be suitably engrossed and sent to the members of his bereaved family, as an expression of the loss which the Class feels in his death, and that a copy of them be inserted in the YALE ALUMNI WEEKLY.

Honor System in Law School.

For some time past the question of instituting the honor system in examinations in the Law School has been agitated among the students of that Department, but the Faculty has been slow in deciding for it until thoroughly convinced that it is the best thing to do. A recent canvass showed that ninety-eight men were in favor of the new system and thirty-seven were against it. No action will be taken until the meeting of the Faculty May 28, when it is thought the change will be made.
