

which was principally emphasized in regard to the WEEKLY was that it was, or should be, the paper in which all parts of the University have an interest, and which belongs to all Yale men. They were urged to treat it as their own paper, to make any criticism or suggestion which they desired, and to seek any information concerning it which might interest them. Passing from the paper as one that sought to stand for all interests of the University, the first dent Hadley, in which he emphasized the importance of an alumni paper, in order to realize the proper relations of graduates to the place. Dr. Hartwell of New York sent his regrets by wire at the last moment.

During the evening, Dr. George P. Fisher, Dean of the Divinity School, responded extemporaneously in a very choice speech to the call of the toastmaster. He dwelt on the importance of the University idea and expressed his pleasure at meeting such a representative company of Yale men. He was obliged to leave the dinner before it was over and just following Mr. Camp, Captain of the Nine. Col. Osborn thereupon called for a long cheer for "Captain Fisher of the Divinity School," and it was given with unusual enthusiasm. During the evening also, Prof. Corwin was called upon extemporaneously. He answered very charmingly and very cordially.

Those present were: Prof. G. P. Fisher; Prof. A. M. Wheeler, '57; W. W. Skiddy, '65 S.; C. H. Clark, '71; H. B. Sargent, '71 S.; Dr. C. P. Lindsley, '75 S.; Walter Camp, '80; Dr. W. G. Daggett, '80; N. G. Osborn, '80; H. C. White, '80; A. A. Welch, '82; Prof. R. N. Corwin, '87; S. H. Fisher, '89; L. S. Welch, '89; H. G. Day, '90 S.; C. W. Wells, '96; N. A. Smyth, '97; H. B. Wright, '98; H. S. Canby, '99 S.; Burnett Goodwin, '99 S.; F. B. Adams, 1900; A. J. Baker, 1900; S. B. Camp, 1900; F. D. Cheney, 1900; T. B. Clarke, Jr., 1900; W. S. Coffin, 1900; J. D. Dana, 1900; J. W. Decrow, 1900; S. B. Dean, 1900; H. E. Ellsworth, 1900; E. B. Greene, 1900; Burns Henry, 1900; E. B. Hill, 1900; L. A. Hochstadter, 1900; Bascom Johnson, 1900; Preston Kumler, 1900; A. D. Leavitt, 1900; G. A. Lyon, Jr., 1900; M. L. McBride, 1900; J. M. McCormick, 1900; P. A. Rockefeller, 1900; R. C. Twichell, 1900; E. H. Clark, 1900 S.; R. H. Hawkins, 1900 S.; C. D. Wood, 1900 S.; A. D. Allen, 1901; D. S. Blossom, 1901; R. W. Chandler, 1901; H. S. Curtiss, 1901; Julian Day, 1901; R. H. Edwards, 1901; E. L. Eliason, 1901; L. E. Fulton, 1901; F. R. Haight, 1901; Ernest Hausberg, 1900; R. B. Hixon, 1901; Warren Hoysradt, 1901; J. A. Keppelman, 1901; Maurice Mason, 1901; P. D. Moody, 1901; Ray Morris, 1901; G. A. Welch, 1901; F. M. Wheeler, 1901; T. S. Woolsey, Jr., 1901; W. M. Fincke, 1901 S.; H. Gilbert, 1901 S.; Southard Hay, 1901 S.; C. D. Francis, 1902; E. J. Thompson, Sp.

UNDERGRADUATE GERMAN CLUB.

The First Year Very Successful—A Bright Outlook.

In May, 1899, a number of men from the Yale Academic Class of 1900 organized the German Club for the purpose of studying various aspects of German life; such as business, politics, national traits, science, military system, literature, art, music and the drama. The officers elected were: President, Maurice P. Gould; Vice-President, John M. Hopkins; Secretary and Treasurer, T. Walter Swan. Practically all the proceedings of the Club are carried on in English. "Gemütlichkeit" is the thing sought for, in addition to the practical knowledge obtained, and is attained through the singing of German student songs, the serving of light refreshments and a general informality.

During the past year several important events have occurred. In November the Club celebrated the one hundred and fortieth anniversary of Schiller. The speakers were Professor Gustav Gruener and Messrs. Baker, Gould, Hausberg and Swan. Mr. H. A. Farr exhibited numerous "Schiller" pictures.

At the January meeting Dr. E. B. Reed's address on "Scholarship in German Universities" brought a most interesting message to Yale men. He showed how much more advanced German students were, in their special line of work at graduation, than are Americans. He also showed how much greater opportunity German professors are given for original work, six hours being the average amount of work per week required from them, whereas American professors averaged about twelve to fifteen hours per week.

The February meeting was especially valuable. Professor John C. Schwab spoke on the "Materialistic Elements in German Culture." He traced the growth of commercialism in Germany since the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, seen more particularly in the movements of population towards cities, the rise of the newly-rich class, the swinging away from the old high ideals to the grossly materialistic. He showed how German universities had checked the domination of this spirit and were bringing Germany back to her old nobility of thought and character. Then he drew a striking parallel between their work and the opportunity which Yale possesses. Nearly forty per cent. of Yale graduates enter business. These are to produce more and more the "saving ideal" in American life if Yale is true to herself and to her country.

The most notable event of the year was the public address, under the auspices of the German Club in the Art School, of Mr. Heinrich Conried, distinguished actor, art patron and manager of the Irving Place Theater, New York City. The subject of the lecture was "The Stage." It was a brilliant description, in German, of a modern play from the time the manuscript reaches the manager's hands until the curtain falls on the last act of its production. He compared the German and American stage. He made plain the degenerate elements in the American stage which ought to be disapproved and shunned. He also pointed the higher ideals from which hope of true artistic progress is to come. Immediately after the lecture, the Club gave a knepie in honor of Mr. Conried, at which enjoyable affair an invitation was accepted to attend Mr. Conried's presentation of Goethe's "Iphigenie auf Touris" at the Irving Place Theater. Professor Perrin accompanied the Club to New York on this trip.

The outlook for the German Club next year is full of promise. Mr. Conried has offered to come to New Haven with his Irving Place Theater Stock Company and produce, at his own expense, under the auspices of the Club, any one of a number of classic German plays. It is also proposed to investigate a number of subjects of current interest, such as (1) The Political

WILLIAM MOSES JONES
Townsend Speaker

Make-up of German at the present time; Its bearing on European Politics; (2) Goethe, Popular and Corrected Conceptions of his Life and Work; (3) The German Army in its Economical Aspects; (4) The present-day literary workmen of Germany. What may be expected from them in Poetry, Fiction History, the Drama, and Sciences; (5) German Foreign Commerce; Means that have been used in its Development. The Colonial System; (6) Berlin as a coming Art, Literary and Music center; (7) German means of transportation, public and private.

The membership of the Club is as follows: From 1900—F. B. Adams, G. M. Baker, S. R. Bartlett, N. W. Bartlett, GOLF STUFF.

One of the largest rooms in our new building is given over entirely to it. If you are not in New Haven, you can send for a descriptive list and for samples. We have everything useful and ornamental, appertaining to the game.

CHASE & CO.

1018 & 1020 Chapel Street.

A. N. Butler, F. Carter, Jr., H. M. Field, E. B. Greene, M. P. Gould, E. B. Hill, J. M. Hopkins, J. B. Hartwell, P. H. Hayes, H. C. Heinz, L. C. Kingman, A. I. Kittle, J. P. Lombard, H. Moore, D. C. Palmer, E. A. Park, P. A. Rockefeller, H. M. Poynter, W. E. Schoyer, D. S. Smith, T. W. Swan, C. T. Treadway, W. J. Voegler, P. C. Walcott, G. N. Whittlesey and H. C. Zellhoefer. From 1901—A. D. Allen, C. W. Allen, S. H. Clapp, G. M. Clark, R. H. Edwards, R. S. Fletcher, P. T. Gilbert, F. G. Harris, E. Hausberg, W. B. Howe, P. J. Leidigh, Ray Morris, Russell Mott, R. M. Newport, Jr., F. M. D. Robertson, G. M. Smith, K. Twining, Jr., H. E. Ward, G. A. Welch, A. P. Wright, A. F. Yaggy and A. J. Young.

"News" Officers and Editors.

Elections of Yale News editors were made by the News board on Monday of this week as follows:

From 1902: Homer Augustus Wessel, Jr., Cincinnati, Ohio; James Wright, New York, N. Y.

From 1903: Glover Beardsley, Auburn, N. Y.; Albert Richard Lamb, Waterbury, Conn.; Morton Cross Fitch, New York, N. Y.

Elections followed for Assistant Chairman and Assistant Business Manager, both from 1902, as follows:

Assistant Chairman—William Edwards Day, Indianapolis, Ind.

Assistant Business Manager—George Boone Carpenter, Chicago, Ill.

These assistants become Chairman and Business Manager respectively on the completion of the terms of the officers of the Nineteen Hundred and One Board. Mr. Day, the new Assistant Chairman, is a brother of Dwight Huntington Day, '99, who was Chairman of the News in 1898-99.

The present Chairman of the News is George A. Welch, 1901, and the Business Manager for next year is Lewis C. Fulton, 1901.

University Band Elections.

A meeting of the University Band was held Tuesday evening, June 12, and these officers were elected to continue the band next year: Manager, Robert Perkins, 1902, Riverhead, N. Y.; Assistant Manager, Frank Maynard Spear, 1902, Lowell, Mass.; Librarian, Robert Grey Bushong, 1903, Reading, Pa. The leader will not be chosen until next Fall when College opens.

The band, which was established last Fall, and frequently headed processions of undergraduates to the larger football matches at the Field, has done good work this Spring at the home baseball games. It was a feature of the Yale section at the Princeton game at Princeton on the 9th of June.

MAURICE P. GOULD
Townsend Speaker

speaker followed the suggestion of the toastmaster and put forward, as a point especially appropriate in that connection, and one which it was time for all Yale men to consider very seriously, the necessity of Yale uniting her forces and supporting without dissent her chosen leaders, in all matters in which the University at large was interested, as against any antagonist or rival. The other speakers of the evening took up this point with a great deal of success and those present responded to such suggestions with much enthusiasm.

Mr. George A. Welch, Chairman of the Yale News, responding for that paper, congratulated the WEEKLY on the necessity of its seeking larger quarters and expressed regret on the part of the News that it was to leave the old rooms which it had shared with that paper. The hope was expressed that the two papers should continue in close alliance in all Yale work.

Mr. Clark, editor of the Hartford Courant, after responding in kind to the stimulating raillery of the toastmaster, paid a very feeling tribute to the strength and sweetness of the Yale life which he had known and to the evidences of its permanence in the company which he saw before him.

Mr. Preston Kumler, 1900, of the ALUMNI WEEKLY's staff, responded for the undergraduates. He expressed his regret that anything had seemed to be out of true with Yale life. He was confident that the men in Yale to-day were as interested in her and devoted to her as ever and he thought that they wished to follow the lead of the alumni and cooperate with them in all good work. These sentiments were very warmly received.

Prof. Wheeler, responding for "The Yale Education," very beautifully expressed his affection for Yale and his belief that she was as sound and true to herself as ever. He thought that any embarrassment had been consequent upon the rapid increase of members, faster than the ability of the College to adjust itself to the new conditions. He commended the struggle and discipline of the old régime.

Mr. Walter Camp, '80, expressed the conclusion of the whole matter in a short and very telling speech, in which he pressed home upon all a sense of individual responsibility for all University interests.

A very interesting feature of the dinner was the presence for a considerable time of Mr. Camp, the Captain of the Baseball Nine, and Messrs. Keator and Trudeau, who were in New Haven with him. Mr. Camp was given a long cheer with great enthusiasm on coming and on going.

A letter of regret was read from Presi-

Good Months for Knox Hats-June and 1 1 others