YALE OBITUARIES.

HENRY BARNARD, '30.

Dr. Henry Barnard, '30, died at his home in Hartford, Conn., July 5.

Dr. Barnard, the son of Chauncey and Elizabeth (Andrus) Barnard, was born in Hartford, Jan. 24, 1811, and prepared at Monson (Mass.) Academy and at the Hopkins Grammar School in Hartford. After graduation he entered a course of private study preparatory to the profession of law, which he meant to make his life work, and while thus engaged, took charge of an academy at Wellsboro, Pa. While there his attention was drawn to the science of education and from that time on made the betterment of the common school system the professional employment of his life. Although he read law and spent one year at the Yale Law School, being admitted to the Connecticut Bar in 1835, he never practiced. Dr. Barnard spent two years in Europe studying the social conditions and the systems of education there, and returning to Hartford in 1837 was elected that year, and the succeeding one, to the legislature, where he devoted himself to measures of reform in the schools and prisons. From 1838 to 1842 he was Secretary of the State Board of School Commissioners, and when the Connecticut Board was abolished in the latter year, he took the position of State Superintendent of Schools in Rhode Island. He retired from this position in 1849. From 1850 to 1854 he was

DR. FREDERICK W. HULSEBERG, YALE '98 M.S.
(Killed in the Philippines early in August.)

Superintendent of Connecticut Schools and Principal of the Normal School, and in 1858 was appointed Chancellor of the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Barnard was chosen President of St. John's College, Maryland, in 1866, but resigned the next year to become First United States Commissioner of Education. His work during his four years of office, organizing the Bureau of Education, is well-known. His educational writings are said to be the most comprehensive published in the English language. He held the degree of LL.D. from Yale given in 1852; from Union College in 1852, and from Harvard in 1853.

Dr. Barnard was married Sept. 6, 1847, to Josephine Desnoyers of Detroit, Mich. There were three children by this marriage, Henry D., Josephine E. and Emily V.

(A fuller sketch of Dr. Barnard's life and works was published in the ALUMNI WEEKLY of Jan. 21, 1897. In the issue of Jan. 28, 1897, an account of the celebration of Dr. Barnard's 86th birthday was published together with the speech of Prof. W. G. Sumner.)

THE RT. REV. DR. RICHARD H. WILMER, '36.

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Richard Hooker Wilmer, '36, died at his home at Spring Hill, Mobile County, Ala., June 14.

He was born at Alexandria, D. C., March 15, 1816, and was the son of Rev. William H. Wilmer, D.D., an Episcopal minister. After graduation from Yale he studied in the Virginia Theological Seminary for three years and was ordained a deacon in the Monumental Church, Richmond, Va. In 1840 he was admitted to full orders and was created Bishop of the Diocese of Alabama, March 6, 1862, holding that position at the time of his death. He received the degree of D.D. from William and Mary College in 1857, and from the University of the South in 1878. In 1867 Cambridge University, England, gave him the degree of LL.D. and thirteen years later he received a similar degree from the University of Alabama.

Dr. Wilmer wrote several books, "The Recent Past from a Southern Standpoint," being, perhaps, the best known.

PROF. JOSEPH EMERSON, '41.

Prof. Joseph Emerson, '41, one of the two original professors of Beloit College, died at his home in Beloit, Wis., Saturday, Aug. 4, after a short illness. Prof. Emerson was born in Norfolk, Conn., May 28, 1821, and was the son of Rev. Ralph Emerson, D.D., who was valedictorian of the Yale Class of 1811. In College Prof. Emerson was an editor of the Yale Literary Magazine, and after graduation taught school for a time in New London, Conn., finally going to the Andover Theological Seminary, where he spent two years in study. From 1844 to 1848 he was a tutor at Yale, receiving in the latter year the appointment as Professor of Ancient Languages in Beloit College, then but a year old. He held that chair at the time of his death, although his work was divided and he devoted himself particularly to the Greek. He was considered one of the best Greek scholars in the country and it was through his influence that Beloit took up the production of Greek plays.

Prof. Emerson was married to Miss

Mary C. North, Sept. 7, 1852, who died in 1879. In 1884 he married Miss Helen Frances Brace of Evanston, Ill., who survives him with two children by the first marriage, Charles A. and Clara E. Emerson.

GEORGE CHADWICK STOCK,

VOCAL INSTRUCTION,

Studio:

ROOMS 13 and 15 CUTLER BUILDING

868 CHAPEL STREET,

NEW HAVEN, CONN.

.. NINTH SEASON ..

Mr. Stock's system of voice culture rests, primarily, upon the fundamental principles of breathing. Because individuals differ, no two larynges give out tone exactly alike. When, then, these fundamentals are thoroughly and practically understood, fixed method ceases and individual training begins.

Artistic singing is an impossibility without perfect breath control.

Most men who come to Yale, study the voice for the first time. It is extremely important that beginners should start their vocal training on right lines. Superficial study leads to faults that are difficult to get rid of.

It is essential, then, that pupils should at once receive knowledge of the voice as a musical instrument, of its complex action in use, of its relation to the breath in singing, and should also be taught to realize the strong influence which the mind exerts over the singing and speaking voice alike.

The fundamental act of singing is will power, and the singer must so train himself as to dominate and make subservient to his will the physical forces which at first are more or less in opposition to singing effort.

By a right system of training these forces are brought under the control of the mind and eventually act with perfect unity. It takes time, patience and persistence, to accomplish this, as every successful singer will tell you. There is no short road by which the art of singing can be attained. If there is one I do not teach it—having no knowledge of it.

The same principles which train the singer are of equal advantage to the speaking voice. Mr. Stock extends a cordial invitation to those who are interested in this very important study to call upon him at his studio, where he will with pleasure explain with thoroughness, his school of voice culture.
